WASHINGTON, March 23.— (UP)—The American Federation of Labor executive council charg-ed today that "enemies of labor" on the Pacific coast "are wilfully and deliberately plotting to destroy labor organizations."

"Labor Enemies"

By unanimous vote, the council asked the Senate to appropriate additional funds for the LaFollette Civil Liberties Committee. It urged that the committee investigate fully its charges that "labor officials have been persecuted and prosecuted and their liberties as American citizens destroyed."

The resolution, offered by the Teamsters' Union president, Daniel J. Tobin, referred particularly to California, Oregon and Washington, where voters late November were asked to adopt initiative measures to regulate labor unions.

Forming the four generations were little Miss Jacquelyn, her mother, Mrs. Rimel; grandmother, Mrs. L. N. Nichols and great-grandmother, Mrs. H. V. Lemon of Pasadena. The celebrant's paternal grandmother, Mrs. A. W. Rimel also was present. Mrs. Lemon was the oldest guest, while little Miss Linda Van Dyke, two and one-half months' old daughter of the John Van Dykes, Jacquelyn presented her playmates with paper hats to wear during the afternoon while they played with her toys. The little tots then were seated at small tables in the sun room, where candle-decked cake was served with ice cream. Adults in the party enjoyed refreshments at the same time. Presentation of gifts to the little girl was a pleasant feature of the party, which took place in a setting of peach blossoms and sweet peas.

It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and those disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. DR. MARGARETE D. BAKER

There are very few women who so splendidly filled the mission of homemaking and motherhood responsibilities as Dr. Margarete D. Baker and at the same time had the willingness and desire to render very difficult and important public service

Possessed of an unusually active mind that was directed by a solid integrity and an unswerving sense of right, Dr. Baker's record as a member of the Santa Ana board of education was one of conscientious thinking and consistently fearless ac-

It was characteristic of her that her first thought, as a board member, was invariably for the welfare of the children; all other considerations were subordinate. She brought to the administration of school affairs at once the experience of the business-woman and the sympathy of the mother. Her place will not be easily filled.

While it is true that her death, yesterday, only hastened the date of her retirement from the board, as she was not a candidate for re-election, it has nevertheless removed one who would have remained, even in private life, a useful contributor to the general good.

SAN DIEGO EDITOR ENDORSES REGISTER'S STAND ON TEXT BOOK

It is evident other California publishers have about the same opinion of some of the text books used in California public schools as the Register.

The San Diego Union, in its leading editorial, on Sunday, had the following to say under the heading of "Pink Textbooks": PINK TEXTBOOKS

"R. C. HOILES, publisher of the Santa Ana Register, has taken up the task of ridding the schools in his community of "pink" textbooks and his efforts along that line have brought outstanding results. But in his latest crusade against a volume that has been adopted by the State Department of Education, as a text for social science classes in the higher grades, he has encountered a more difficult situation. He will need statewide support if he is to succeed.

"The book, known as 'America and the New Frontier,' is written by George Earl Freeland, dean of education in the State College at San Jose. From its tone and general content, the book indicates that Mr. Freeland has absorbed the new deal in all its starry-eyed beauty and the way in which he passes along his undigested observations as gospel for immature minds is something to behold.

"As an example, Mr. Freeland writes that 'leaders of labor have come to be highly regarded.' He doesn't say whether these leaders are some of the founders of the organized labor movement, or whether they include men like Harry Bridges, John L. Lewis, Dave Beck, Homer Martin or others of like repute. These passing fancies of the disturbed and disturbing element frequently are mentioned as leaders of various factions, and the text of Mr. Freeland's book would lead the youngsters to believe that they represent a high type of American citizenship.

The Nation's Press

ONE BIG, RED UNION (Chicago Tribune)

John Lewis has been pretending that the scheme he put forward a few days ago to establish centralized control over all wings of organized labor in this country is the child of his own brain. Possibly he thinks he figured the thing out for himself, but the evidence to the contrary is overwhelming. His plan is a communist plan, embodied in a resolution adopted by the communist party's central committee 20 months ago. The plan was suggested by Earl Browder, general secretary of the communist party, and was published at the time by the communist party's official newspaper. Plenty of the men at John Lewis' elbow regard

REDEFINING CAPITAL

We need a definition of capital that more people will understand. There is now great confusion as to what capital is.

Capital is equipment, the using of which enables the owner to benefit those buying the products produced by the use of this equipment and also to benefit those operating this equipment; and, in addition, has something left to benefit the owner of the equipment. When it fails to have something left to benefit the owner of the equipment, it ceases to be capital.

Billions upon billions of dollars worth of capital have been eliminated in the last few years. It has been eliminated largely because workers operating this capital demanded so much for what they produced and refused to let others do it for less, that the equipment, known as capital, was not able to benefit the people buying the product or the people owning the equipment. Therefore, the equipment, or capital, was destroyed.

It is largely because of this condition that Spain was defeated. And it is largely because of this condition that France and England were not able to produce enough wealth to defend themselves against the nations which did not permit this interference with the use of equipment.

Those who do not believe this might well read the great Spaniard Gasset's book, "The Revolt of the Masses." He explains in detail how it worked. Or they might read the great German, Spengler's book, "The Hour of Decision." In 1932, he said, We are passing through a century of anarchy and the worst decades are just setting in on us. It is doubtful whether, by the middle of this century, we will be able to recognize any of the governments in their present form." This man had foresight. He knew how wealth is created and how capital is destroyed. But our educators and our politicians and our demagogic newspapers have been trying to make the people think that wealth can be created by collective bargaining and by limiting output.

CONCEITED EMPLOYERS AND EMPLOYES

One of the primary causes of what we might call our permanent depression, is the conceit of employers and employes. And any employer, or any employe, who pretends to know what wages any employe, who pretends to know what wages should be paid, without taking into consideration The Merry-Go-Round the customers who are workers, is conceited.

The fact of the matter is that no employer and no employe knows how high wages can be or should be. It takes the united opinion of all workers and all consumers to establish a wage that

As he appeared on the platform and the loud speaker announced, "James A. Farley will now present the cup to the owner of the winner," there was another blast of catcalls.
